JUDGE ROSCH HOLDING COURT

While Judge Staley is occupied at Hudson—Fred W. Woolsey Grand Jury Foreman.

The December term of the supreme court was convened Monday afternoon at the court house. Judge E. J. Staley, who was scheduled to hold this term of court, is engaged at court at Hudson this week and Judge Joseph Rosch will preside at least this week. If Judge Staley concludes his present engagement this week he will hold court here next week.

There is a grand and trial jury in attendance at this term of court. There are 285 cases on the civil calendar.

Of the grand jury, Fred W. Woolsey of Marlborough was named foreman by the court and all of the jurors but two were present when the list was called by Clerk Geroldick. Of these two, Herbert Burhans of Sagerties and George Leader of Wawarsing, were excused, leaving a panel of twenty grand jurors.

All of the trial jurors were present when the panel was called except Grayland Penny, who was out of the state and not served. Eight others were excused by the court upon the presentation of legal excuses. They were:

Edward D. Fitzgerald, Kingston; Joseph Johnson, Shandaken; Anthony McEroy, Kingston; R. D. Taylor, McMichael, Marlborough; Allen Oakley, Olive; William C. Perkins, Lloyd; Matthew Sloan, Shawangunk, and Alonzo Werley, Kingston.

At the conclusion of the call of the calendar and the making up of the day calendar for today, alien applicants for naturalization were examined by the court and Nathan Watson, examiner for the U. S. department of commerce and labor.

CLIMPS OF PLAYS

TEACHERS WILL PRESENT.

The two plays which the faculty of the high school will present on December 7 are "The Romanians" and "The Wonder Hall."

The scene of Rostrand's "Romanians" is laid in the days of Louis XIV in a garden or rather gardens, and a romantic plot is worked out over a garden wall. The staging will be as well done as could be expected with the present non-equipment of the stage. It is the hope of the faculty that with one-half the net proceeds it will be possible to call in an expert and have the stage so equipped that with a minimum of effort, time and expense any class or organization can properly stage a play.

The second play, written by Goodman and Mecht, will be pretty and witty. The theme is known only to the performers, but from occasional glimpses of the stage as practice runs on it certainly will be interesting. This play also is staged in a garden.

Miss Mary E. Noone, the senior teacher of English, is directing the rehearsals of "The Romanians." Miss Tarrant, teacher of oral English, and Miss Beth Estey, also of the English department, are coaching "The Wonder Hall."

The public library of this city is in need of funds not only to advance its work but even to maintain a standard fitting to this city. The directors of the library will receive one-half of the proceeds of these plays.

Bus Driver Hunt.

E. J. Birdsall, driver of the Plattekill stage, and carrier of the mail on the route through Plattekill, was badly injured when his bus struck a tree Saturday afternoon. The impact with the tree followed a collision with a Hudson touring car owned by Samuel Waring of New Paltz and driven by Mr. Waring's daughter. The mishap took place near Mahan's garage, not far from the Newburgh city limits.

Great Missouri Fire.

Richmond, Mo., Dec. 4.—The entire block of business buildings on Main street and four mercantile houses in an adjacent street were laid in ruins early today by fire which started in the back of a grocery store. The post office was among the buildings ruined. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

Court House Busy Place.

Supreme court being in session with a grand and a trial jury, and the supervisors' committee being at work there such a scarcity of room in the court house today that Referee R. J. Cooper held hearings of claims for compensation under the employers' liability act in the business office of the sheriff.

N. Y. C. GETTING UNIONS' DEMANDS

Engineers' Brotherhoods Meet Officials—Train Crews Friday—Seek Wages Above Any Previously Paid, With Important Changes in Rules.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Dec. 4.—Heads of the railroad brotherhoods today opened a campaign for wage increases and changes in working conditions. The campaign was launched at a conference between the workers' officials and the New York Central Railroad, one of the most powerful roads in the country.

If successful in the effort to wrest an increase from the New York Central, it was reported, the rail workers will press their advantage in conferences with other roads.

Plans for an attack on the Esch-Cummings act are also being formulated at private meetings of the union officials.

Today's meetings were between representatives of the railroad and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Friday, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors will have their inning with the road.

Great importance is attached to these two meetings by the union heads as they are considered the first skirmish. If the road yields to the demands other smaller lines will be easier to deal with, they pointed out.

If no agreement is reached the whole case will be laid before the United States railroad labor board.

It is understood the men are seeking a wage "rather more than the peak wage of 1920." Changes in rules and working conditions are considered of greatest importance by the men.

AWARD TO LIVINGSTON

AGAINST O. & W. UPHELD.

The appellate division of the supreme court has sustained the award of $64,000 to Charles Victor Livingston against the Ontario and Western Railway made by a commission several months ago. The opinion was written by Justice Hylan.

It is hoped this decision rings down the curtain on the long and bitterly fought action of Mr. Livingston to eject the railway from land of the Livingston estate to which he said the railroad and others had faulty title. Mr. Livingston won in the courts and half the owners of Livingston Manor land became homeless, all feeling that their home was created and in many instances the savings of a lifetime were wiped out, plunging more than one family deep in debt for the home they had once paid for.

THE FREEMAN INSTALLS A ### MODERN ADDRESSOGRAPH.

The Freeman Publishing Company has just had installed a modern addressograph which makes the complete plate or stencil used in the machine to address letters or postcards or other work of like character. There are a number of addressograph machines owned by industrial concerns, and lodges, but when new names are added to the mailing list it has been necessary to send the list out of town to have stencils made. Now that The Freeman has installed the machine equipment stencils can be made the same day the list is turned in. This will prove of great benefit to those who desire to keep their mailing lists up to the minute.

CURRENT OFFERINGS

AT THE THEATERS

The Kingston Follies, the girl show at the Opera House in which the girls come from Kingston, had its premier Monday and two crowded houses signified their entire approval. The girls evidently had much self-possession and not a little talent to begin with and their tutor did wonders in imparting stage customs in a short time. The musical revue has plenty of action, fun and is well costumed and set. Also there are five acts of vaudeville and a feature picture. The Follies will be here all week.

At Keene's is Hope Hampton as Boris Clarke in "Does It Pay," showing how an irresistible beauty turns her talents to "gold digging" with no good results to anyone.

At the Auditorium today is Viola Dana, the clever little Metro star in a photo drama, "Love in the Dark," a comedy that suits her to perfection.

Zane Grey's great Paramount picture "To the Last Man" featuring such sterling screen artists as Lois Wilson and Richard Dix, supported by Frank Campbell, Robert Edison and Noah Beery and dealing with a feud between cattlemen and sheepmen in the Tonto Basin, in Arizona during the eighties will be shown at the Orpheum today and tomorrow with an exceptional vaudeville offering of five acts.

REPUBLICAN REBELS CONTINUE TO BLOCK ORGANIZATION OF CONGRESS

Still Vote For Cooper as Speaker, Preventing Majority for Gillett—Senate Marks Time and Two Important Messages From President Wait.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Dec. 4.—The insurgent mouse again held the Republican cat at bay today and continued the spectacle of a congress that cannot function because of the inability of its leaders to organize it for business.

The militant little band of Republican irregulars from the northwest who throw the works into confusion at the opening of the session, were apparently as determined as ever this morning not to permit the reelection of Speaker Frederick H. Gillett until they have assurances that the rules of the house will be liberalized to insure votes on legislation instead of having bills smothered in committees.

The grim and somewhat contemptuous leaders of the house apparently were equally determined not to surrender to the Democrats of the insurgents and another day's deadlock was in prospect. Both sides are banking on public support.

The first ballot, shortly after noon today, resulted in no election for speaker, the 17 "progressive" Republicans voting for Cooper of Wisconsin.

The deadlock continued on the second and third ballots. Meanwhile, of course, no bills can be introduced, no business transacted, no committees appointed—and the country is confronted with the spectacle of President Coolidge wanting to deliver two important communications to congress, but finding it impossible for the reason there is no congressional organization to receive them.

The senate is as helpless as the house because without the house functioning, the senate cannot either, except in a routine and desultory fashion.

The senate met today at noon and adjourned four minutes later. The house adjourned following the fourth ballot which also was without result.

ZASLER'S AUCTION IS TAKEN UP

An action brought by Nathan Zasler against C. D. Divine and another was taken up in supreme court this morning before Judge Rosch and a jury. The action is brought to recover damages sustained by plaintiff when he was struck by a car driven by defendant at Ellenville on September 23, 1920. Zasler, who was a boarder at Ellenville, was standing on the running board of a car which was parked on the right hand side of the street entertaining some children who were there. The car of Mr. Divine, an electric, driven by defendant came up the street and was attempting to pass the parked car. At this point plaintiff claims Mr. Divine was negligent in not allowing sufficient space between the two cars as he passed. Defendant claims that he allowed sufficient space but that plaintiff jumped from the running board of the parked car directly in front of the oncoming car and was hit through his own negligence. His foot was injured.

Judge Jenkins and Chris Flanagan appear for plaintiff and John R. De Vany, John W. Eckert and H. Westlake Coons appear for defendants.

Coats and Wraps Pretty and Warm

Favorite Winter Garments
Are Built for Style and Service.

An Arctic winter is headed this way. The news is in the very air—not because the weather man has confided in prophecy, but because a glorious season of fashions in furs has opened. Authorities say there has never been a time in all their experience when furs alone had such a vogue and really dominated the entire category of styles.

Always, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, a woman who went for good clothes has had a fur coat

Quette for Debutante Is Made of

her winter layout. It was the one of indulgence in her wardrobe; pride, and the envy of her less fortunate friends. If her estate were to be one of affluence, the coat would be the last word in luxury—sable, like rubies, has ever had a value.

The possessor of a seal skin coat was regarded as a person of rank in a world of fashion. One fur wrap thought, in days past, to be a sufficient blessing for any one person, and not so long ago the shopkeeper offered fur garments to his rich customers had often to employ all of his salesmanship to persuade them to buy fur instead of cloth for outer wraps.

The automobile changed all that, for motor coats became a necessity. Being in the open, it was impossible to keep warm in anything but furs, and the motor salesman became, quite unconsciously, an ally of the dealer in furs.

Enveloping wraps and ankle-length coats of the heavier furs were all in modish models and the vogue was established. All of the coarser styles of fur were used for those utility wraps—raccoon, opossum, mink, ringtail, civet cat—with the inevitable result that these came into disrepute and their prices soared. Beauty and style were not especially considered. Women who drove about in the earlier fur wraps looked not unlike frontiersmen dressed in buffalo and bear skins. They offered a great contrast with the slender silhouette.

Craze for Furs.

Now that there is a craze for furs, woman who goes to buy her winter coat selects as many fur wraps as she can afford. She finds need for a long coat for street and carriage wear—the carriage now being a limousine. This coat may be of seal skin, ermine, broadtail, squirrel or any one of several novelty furs and fur fabrics combined with real fur. Mink is, of course, more costly, but is popular for weather service and dressy day occasions. It is suitable also for formal evening wear, for no change in fashion has ever affected the dignity and solid value of mink.

This fur belongs to a woman of position in the social world. Her grandmother was proud to own a mink or a half-length dolman. The woman of today wears a mink coat, wrap-length, or a soft wrap that completely covers her. The coat of old days had dressed the lady of the man for a year. The affluent one wears Russian sable, not for the day but for all kinds of formal dress occasions.

Ermine belongs traditionally to the robes of royalty, and is ever a sign of beauty and refinement. As a garment it was not so popular formerly as now, made into gowns, wraps and coats, long and short. The most exclusive models in ermine have their origin in cut full, with long use of the fur. Some are of a wrap-around garment. Some are a flaring blouse, are paneled or draped.

A particularly gorgeous wrap, of a circular cape of the fur falls from the neck to a low waistline, richness upon richness. In another style of uncommon grace the upper part of the wrap is draped about the shoulders at one side, where the fur drops in a point and is finished with a long, heavy tassel of silk. In many of the new styles fur is draped as freely as if it were silk or any lighter material.

Ermine for Dress Occasions.
For the ball and dinner gown made of the lovely new fabrics in delicate shades, a wrap of ermine is the most suitable of all furs. But human skepticism that so easily transfers patronage has lost some of its passion for ermine as a dressy wrap, since the fur has been so generally used for more common wear in street coats, and so widely and cleverly imitated.

Ermine is essentially a fur for youth and the most engaging garments made of it are shown in the misses' and junior models. Some are long, to wear over the dainty dance frocks. Others, in the short jacket style, have a decided cachet. One among the many charming samples of these little coats is made of black velvet and lined with ermine, a narrow band of the fur showing all around the edge, about the collar and the cuffs. The novel feature of this model is that it may be worn inside out, which the flapper finds amusing.

The jacquettes of ermine, mole, broadtail, caracul, in black, the natural cream shade, or taupe, the newest dye; and of nutria, rabbit or squirrel are tremendously popular for lunch at the restaurants and for other informal occasions. One sees really more of these than of the longer coats.

Seal skin has come back into its own and is more popular this season than it has been for many years. Not the same old coat in stereotyped model that endured so long, but new styles that have decided elegance. The very latest seal skin coat is made with no other fur and no trimmings, its skins are selected and the lines of the garment are quite new. Designers have shown the keenest interest in handling this fur and have presented several models of distinction.

One is a coat cut in straight lines from the throat to the instep, the general build of the garment being boxy, the sleeves straight and rather wide. A voluminous collar that crushes above the chin, and wide, slightly flaring cuffs are added. A dressier model in seal is cut after the plan of a cloth coat, the skirt, in three tiers, being attached to the waist. One other is a loose wrap-around with wide sleeves and deep, soft collar. On this an ornament of bronze beads with two heavy tassels forms the clasp over one hip.

Self-Fur Collar and Cuffs.
Seal skin is so smooth and uniform that it works out with unusual success in the deep flounce model, one having a slightly flaring skirt that ripples all around, with self-fur collar and cuffs. Some especially handsome wraps in seal are trimmed with skunk and other furs, one model having a band of skunk around the bottom of the straight coat, extending in a narrow strip up the front, ending low at the waist. Another seal skin has a cape of its own fur, a band of fox outlining the edge and forming the collar and cuffs; but this has an over-trimmed appearance and is less smart than the garments of all-seal.

A new favorite has been elected, and chinchilla is now the choice of all the furs for evening. It is not inexpensive, as everyone knows, and it is adaptable to the needs of any age. Chinchilla becomes a dowager as well as it does a debutante, though it must be said that its soft grays harmonize most happily with a rose-leaf complexion.

Broadtail and Chinchilla Combined in

Chinchilla is compensating to the modiste, for it combines well with other furs. It makes the most stylish collars and cuffs, for example, on a coat of broadtail or caracul. As all-over garments most of the models in chinchilla are rather simple in line, because the fur itself is deep and the shadings in its color are very beautiful. The fur neckline is no longer the piece of resistance in a fashionable toilet. As a protection, worn with a suit or a one-piece dress, it is almost indispensable, but as a fad it has passed and is now merely an article of utility.

A Successful Dinner.

"Was your dinner a success?" "Yes, indeed. All the people we didn't invite to it are now wishing they were there."

Rights of a Mother-in-Law.

The mother-in-law, in this country at all events, is a much-abused relation, but in China she has come into her own. There a new law has been passed under which divorce may be granted for the ill-treatment of a mother-in-law, or a father-in-law, for that matter, says the Detroit News. This code replaces the ancient law called "Xili," which legalized divorce from a too-talkative wife, for lack of respect for a mother-in-law, or for jealousy. One other unique reform has been made, namely, that the consent of a father and mother has to be obtained before a divorce may be granted.

AN AMAZING SENATOR.

Senator Hudson of Oklahoma, in a speech defending the Ku Klux Klan as "an organization that stands for law and order," is quoted as saying, not only that the Klan cleared Tulsa county of "highjackers, bootleggers and criminals" but that he knew "of only one man who was flogged and did not get what he deserved," obviously meaning that among all the persons flogged by Klansmen he knew of only one who was afterwards found to be innocent of the charge that caused him to be dragged out at night and beaten. This senator of Oklahoma would seem to wish to testify to the world that the Ku Klux Klan "stands for law and order" because when it takes upon itself to act as judge, jury and executioner it rarely makes a mistake as to the guilt of the accused and therefore its summary administration of justice is admirable as well as proper.

Strange words and views from a senator who has been taught by both American theory and practice, as his father was before him, that every accused man because of the possibility of his innocence has a right to his day in court, with the service of counsel, with a judge to interpret the law and a jury to decide on the quality of the testimony, so that justice may be done deliberately and in light, with none of the haste or passion of the private avengers of whatever name or order. Strange that this senator fails to understand that the one innocent victim he admits knowledge of was not the only person wronged and that even those he is sure "deserved" flogging were outrageously robbed of the rights belonging to them under the "law and order" of civilization.

It is stranger still that a responsible public officer and statesman, said to be widely respected, should fail to understand that in defending those who take the law in their own hands, always in haste and too often in passion, he is to that extent weakening the government he represents and lessening the power and authority of the courts, and that the vitality of both will be sapped in direct proportion as the masked vigilantes claiming and aiming at an "invisible empire" gain in numbers and strength. Senator Hudson would not admit it, may not realize it, and yet he is doing his utmost—it is correctly quoted—to bring on an era wherein there will be no senators, representatives or judges, but only masked "grand dragons," "kleagles" and what not, with governmental chaos as a result and a threatened return of cave man conditions wherein the only law was the aim of the strong as they clubbed the weak into submission.

Granting all that is said of the "good old days" the fact remains that in the good old days of which we hear so much the telephone was not here, the automobile was on its way from somewhere, and many other conveniences, with which we could hardly do without, were not within reach. If we were to be thrown far enough back into some of the good old days we might be less apt to refer to the present time as not like the good old days. If we were thrown back we would be more likely to say that the good old days were all right but today and tomorrow are a bit better.

There seems to be a tendency of some to inferentially attack the present by saying nothing is as good today as it was in the good old days. They apply the reference to everything from medicine to meat markets. In almost every instance, however, the utterance comes from a grouchy who has not kept pace with the times and who has gotten behind the procession. Thus when he checks up he is liable to favor the good old days because he is not qualified for existence in 1924.

Times are getting better in every way. They must be, and they have been getting better right along. If such were not the case, where would the world be today? In every profession there has been advancement, and in every business there has been improvement. Human relationships are closer and there is more fellow feeling, conceding all that may be said of industrial unrest. The individual who continually harks back to the good old days is lost in the shuffle and does not know what is going on in the world.

The good old days were all right, and those who lived in those days did much for which they should be applauded. Nevertheless, the present days have a little on the good old days in precisely the same way that those who will be here one hundred years hence will have a little on us and would not ask to have the universe turned back to 1921, admitting the progress that has been made to this date. The "good old days" is sort of a romantic reference more than anything else, because the good old days of any earlier era have nothing on the good days of this period in which we are living and breathing and glad of the chance.

WHAT ABOUT FASTING?

A newspaper item stated recently that the old theory that starvation is good for physical ills has been confirmed by the University of Chicago. One of the students who acted as a subject stated that she had done without food for fifteen days, taking nothing but distilled water. She stated further that she had a feeling of renewed vigor that lasted for months—also that anybody can do it.

This last statement, "anybody can do it," is where the harm will be done. This student was under the watchful eye of the investigators and was therefore in safe hands.

But the average individual has no right to subject himself to such an experiment.

If you are too heavy, are middle aged and in good health, a course in "starvation" might be safe and actually of benefit.

If you are still in your teens, or are up near the three score, then you have no right to subject your body to the starvation course.

But why subject yourself to any starvation cure when a safer, saner method will accomplish your purpose? Said purpose being to give your system a new lease of life by getting rid of accumulated wastes, or as in most cases to reduce weight.

And my suggestion? Well, there are tables which show you the ideal weight for your height. I can't just agree with them because they make no allowance for the two types of individual—greyhound and bull dog types.

If you are say fifteen pounds overweight it is not a very serious matter, and so you go about the reduction systematically.

Just figure out the amount of food you take in a day—at breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Now measure this either on scales or just in your mind. Cut this total down by one-fifth, particularly the fats and liquids.

Doing the ordinary amount of work to which you are accustomed in five pounds a month, until you get it down to normal. If you are unusually heavy you might reduce your regular food by one-third.

Now this is a slow process, but it is a safe and satisfactory method. Of course, if you are willing to do more work or exercise than is your custom, your results will be more rapid and will be more lasting.

But no one is justified in abstaining from food for more than four or five days at a time unless they are under supervision.

FARRAR'S BIG OFFER

Golden Opportunity Awaits Some of Our Foresighted Citizens or Fortunate Investors.

In another column of tonight's Freeman appears an advertisement of great importance. W. Arthur Farrar, the well known real estate broker, offers to dispose of one of the best located and most desirable properties for a factory site or any other business requiring rail facilities or track connections in the city of Kingston. This property, which is most ideally located, has a frontage of six hundred feet on the West Shore Railroad and is about four hundred feet deep.

Kingston is steadily growing and increasing daily in population. It must have factories or some industries that will give employment to men. Strange to say, our Chamber of Commerce has not one available site within the city limits on the West Shore Railroad to offer for such purposes except this property, which is the last and only one to be had and is now offered for sale by Mr. Farrar. For the investor or those having funds to invest in the safest and surest of all investments—real estate—especially property of this nature which is of such high class and holds promise of such large returns in the near future, coupled with the fact that it has railroad connections which are so scarce and hard to find, being seldom if ever on the market—now is the opportune time for the shrewd man to get busy, as the price is so reasonable and the terms to the right party most liberal.

Mr. Farrar's phone connection is 1640-R.—Advertisement.

When Edward Lehman was shot by a man and a woman he interrupted in a factory robbery in Chicago, he gasped: "Get Bockelman!" and died. Walter Bockelman was arrested, and Ethel Beck, his common-law wife, "confessed" to the police she was with Bockelman when the killing took place and that Bockelman was the slayer. Bockelman denied the crime. Later Otto Malin, hardened safe-blower, was arrested and confessed that he was the real slayer and that his wife, Katherine Malin, a "two-gun woman," was his accomplice in the murder and in 60 other crimes. Mrs. Malin, too, confessed. Then the Beck woman repudiated her confession, but she had told the story in such detail the police are completely at sea. Standing behind the quartet are Assistant Jailor Strassheim and Assistant State's Attorney John Sharbaro.

NEW LIGHT ON ETRUSCAN ORIGIN

One of Most Puzzling Mysteries of History May Be Solved by Discovery.

Washington, D. C.—"One of the most puzzling mysteries of history, the source of Etruscan civilization, famous rival of Rome, may be solved by the discovery announced from Italy of a very ancient city near Ferrara," explains a bulletin from the National Geographic society and continues:

"Tombs recently found beneath the mud deposited by the Po river are of a period antedating the founding of Rome and indicate an Etruscan origin. Romulus, founder of Rome, suckled by a she-wolf according to legend, found the Etruscan people firmly established when he began Rome. Legend gives them a league of twelve cities thriving on the rich fertile plain to which Egypt, Greece and Africa paid bounteous tribute in gold, silver, scarabs, rare vases and priceless gems. Pisa, famous today for its leaning tower, was a small village of rich, extravagant, voluptuous Etruria. All the great cities have vanished.

Fell Victims to Luxury. "Etruscans are supposed to have entered Italy from the Po region. Whether they came from Macedonia, the home of Alexander the Great, or whether they were a colony established by Greece in the days of her grandeur may be decided by the remains of the lost city discovered near Ferrara. Like Rome, Etruria fell victim of her sin. Diodorus wrote, 'Their country was so fertile they derived therefrom not only sufficient for their needs but enough to supply them with luxuries. Twice a day they partook of elaborate repasts at which the tables were decked with embroidered cloths and vessels of gold and silver. The servants were noticeable for the richness of their attire. In fact, giving themselves up to sensuous enjoyments they had naturally lost the glorious reputation their ancestors had won in wars.'

"Etruria today is a country of dun fields and deep rocky ravines. Ferrara, too, where the ancient Etrurian city has been unearthed, is a dismal faded flower living on the memories of its glorious blooming in the bright days of the Italian Renaissance.

Reminders of Famous Names. "Scraps of graceful cornices and weather-worn marble remind the visitor of famous names; of Lucretia Borgia, who had been married four times by her father, Pope Alexander VII, at the age of twenty-two; of Tasso who wrote 'Jerusalem Delivered' while living under the patronage of the famous Lucretia. Titian achieved his first great success in Ferrara with magnificent renaissance canvases for the altar of the church of Furi. Then there was Aldus. Even today men who deal with type the whole world round know and praise the work of this man, who, following close on the heels of Gutenberg, inventor of printing, produced type which is still a standard of grace. It was Aldus, also, protégé of Lucretia, living at the magnificent ducal palace of Ferrara, who developed what is now known as Italian type.

"Aldus was no less a scholar than a printer. His emissaries and fellow-workers scoured Greece and Constantinople for the fast disappearing Greek gems of literature. He produced the first Greek grammar and saved to the world priceless works of Horace, Plato, Socrates and other writers, philosophers and singers who will always be intellectual giants of civilization.

Made Fine Art of Wickedness. "Brilliant and colorful as was the Italian Renaissance period it was also corrupt, licentious, immoral and wicked beyond belief. Great works of Titian, Bellini, Raphael were hatched by diabolical murders, by assassination bought and paid for, by poisonings, by intestine wars, by religion and political life both sunk in a morass of evil practices. Into such a setting a famous son of Ferrara was born, the noted Savonarola. He swore the corrupt court life and like a prophet of the Old Testament, went through the land preaching against wickedness and assuring God's forgiveness for the penitent. Great crowds were charged with enthusiasm by the power of his oratory, the people changed their way of life, simple garb was assumed by thousands, and monarchs were overthrown.

"So powerful did Savonarola become that enemies plotted his death. Finally he and two of his followers were tried by a jury of their enemies, condemned to death, hanged, and their bodies burned. Amid the memories of great courts, great painters and great martyrdom Ferrara lives, sleepy and dodgy under the sun and the Italian blue sky. Now with the discovery of the Etrurian town a new memory is added to the already long list."

Prize Fish Story

Comes From Alaska

Long Beach, Cal.—A school of tame trout which answer their master's call, eat bread crumbs from his hands and make their headquarters in his cellar, is the theme of a fish story brought back from Skagway, Alaska, and vouched for by C. A. Bachman, local realtor.

In Skagway a switchman named Johnson has his house on the banks of a river whose waters flood his cellar, says Bachman. When Johnson opens a trap door in the floor of his kitchen and stamps his foot hundreds of speckled trout begin jumping madly about the water. Johnson reaches down, pulls out several at a time and feeds them bread crumbs. All of his fish answer his call without fear, according to the Long Beach eyewitness of the phenomenon.

Greek Dancer Who Sees New Era in Art World

Yassos Kanellos, Greek dancer, and his wife, formerly Charlotte Markham and known on the stage as Tanagra, see a new era in art even exceeding the early Grecian period, according to statements made in San Francisco. Mrs. Kanellos says the great Russian modernists are really plagiarizing the work of early Byzantine masters. They have hit upon, in a measure, the spirit of that period, which she claims was more splendid than the Renaissance, although it preceded the latter period. The above photograph is that of Yassos Kanellos.

Kissing Boston Pastor Exonerated by Board

Boston.—The Rev. George L. Paine, who received a beating early in July at the hands of Lieut. Wesley McLaren Hague, U. S. N., on account of a kiss which the minister, who had married the pair, gave the lieutenant's wife, will continue as executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

The board of directors of the federation, voting after a five-hour session, refused, by a vote of 27 to 4, to accept his proffered resignation.

The board statement said the incident was referred to as "essentially an offense against high manners and the highest type of behavior" only, in view of the fact that Lieutenant Hague, in a signed statement had said that "neither he nor his wife believed at any time that there was any evil intent in Mr. Paine's action."

Roads Employ 500,000 More Men Than Year Ago

Washington.—Railroads were employing during July 1,954,657 workers, almost 500,000 more than they employed during the same month a year ago. They paid out during the same month in wages and salaries $261,805,540, against a payment during July, 1922, of $192,571,214.

These figures were reported recently by the Interstate Commerce commission. They indicated a slight increase in earning rates for all classes of railroad employees during the year.

Trainmen in July last averaged $180 per month, while a year ago their earnings were $150; maintenance of way employees averaged $3 a month more than last year. Professional and clerical workers averaged $173 per month, while a year ago they got $172.

Blow on Head Restores Sanity. New York.—A blow on the head when he was escaping from Matteawan with three other inmates restored Frank James, twenty-three, to sanity. When he was arraigned in February he was so unbalanced that he wore a straight-jacket. He was sent to Matteawan and the following month tried to escape. The blow received in the struggle made him normal again, doctors testified, and he has since been living quietly at home.

Men Lift Car to Save Girl. South Bend, Ind.—Myrtle Luduke, fifteen, a schoolgirl, was struck and pinned beneath a street car here. Fifty men gathered about the car and lifted it from the street while Stanley Dworchy, a city fireman, at the risk of his life, crawled beneath the car and dragged her to safety.

NO BULLET MARK ON CHAPMAN

Evidence, However, Showed Man Who Shot B. W. S. Policeman Was Shot in Return—Chapman Convicted.

What is said to have been one of the most peculiar criminal cases ever tried in Delaware county was heard by County Judge McNaught and a jury at Delhi last week and resulted in the conviction of Brewster Chapman, a negro, of assault and his sentence to the Auburn state prison for a term of not less than eighteen months or more than three years.

Chapman was accused of having shot one of the New York city board of water supply policemen with a gun. The policeman was mounted, as are all board of water supply police engaged in patrolling the New York watershed in Ulster and adjoining counties where work is in progress or has been completed. The evidence showed that Chapman approached the policeman swinging a .22 calibre rifle in a threatening manner. The policeman dismounted from his horse on the opposite side so as to interpose the horse between him and the negro, but the negro was close to the horse and fired the rifle under the horse's neck, wounding the policeman in the side. When the gun was discharged, the policeman said he had an unobstructed view of the negro, and as the negro backed away from the place where he had been standing when he fired, the policeman fired several shots at him, one or more of which took effect.

Four hours after the shooting, according to the evidence, the negro was removed in an ambulance from Grand Gorge to the Benedictine Hospital in this city, where he was treated for his injuries, and thirty days afterward he was arrested there by Sheriff Arbuckle and Undersheriff Stewart of Delaware county, who took him to the jail in Delhi where he remained until trial.

The witnesses for the People were connected with the New York city water works construction now in progress near Grand Gorge, and a nurse from the hospital, several of whom positively identified Chapman as the negro who shot the policeman. The testimony of those present at the shooting and who carried the negro to the ambulance was to the effect that his face, his arm and the back of his head were covered with blood. The nurse from the Benedictine Hospital stated that a bullet had entered his cheek and passed through his head near the hair line.

Chapman denied the shooting and said he had been injured by being struck on the shoulder and had spent several days at the hospital before the shooting took place. Drs. Orsman and Silliman of Delaware county, who examined him while he was in the Delhi jail testified they could not find any marks on either his face or body to indicate he ever had been wounded by a bullet, or any scars of recent origin. Neither the sheriff nor undersheriff had found any bullet wounds on Chapman. It was also shown that he had been promoted to the position of foreman the day before the shooting, and while in jail had been a model prisoner.

The defense contended there was a case of mistaken identity, relying upon Chapman's own testimony and the failure to find any traces of the bullet wound which had been testified existed in his cheek and head when he was brought to the hospital. The jury found Chapman guilty and Judge McNaught imposed the sentence stated.

MRS. BOOTH APPEALS FOR DIFFERENT CHRISTMAS FUND

New York, December 1, 1923. Editor, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

May I, through the pages of your publication, reach the hearts of those who have the true Christmas spirit, and who are eager to pass on a little of their good cheer and happiness to others.

So often I hear people say, "I love the cold weather," as they cheerily face the bitter winter breezes; and again, I hear them counting the days to the one when they cry to their friends, "Merry Christmas!"

My heart grows heavy as the mercury drops, for I know the misery and suffering it brings to many homes, and at Christmas I always see the shadows of wanters thickly around the hearths, where stockings can not be hung for Santa Claus, and where no cheery blaze burns in comfort and home gladness.

Will you help me to make Christmas comfort and cheer possible for thousands of prisoners' families, who, otherwise, would find it a sad and helpless day? I want to send warm clothing for shivering little bodies, shoes for frost-bitten feet, toys to bring laughter to quivering lips, and food for hungry little mouths.

I think I can promise that we will make every dollar go very far. All donations of money, clothing or toys, should be addressed to Mrs. Ballington Booth, The Volunteers of America, 34 West 28th street, New York city.

Every donation will be officially receipted.

Believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

MRS. BALLINGTON BOOTH.

Riccobono Directs "Symphonaders."

The "Symphonaders" orchestra, under the direction of Theodore Riccobono of this city and Leonard Alorton of Catskill, manager, is fast becoming one of the most popular orchestras in the eastern part of the state. Mr. Riccobono stated that the orchestra would go on a tour through Pennsylvania, where they will fill engagements during the holiday season. Returning then to Ithaca they will be occupied playing at the various Cornell fraternity dances, etc. This orchestra, composed of capable musicians, many of whom are conservatory graduates, owes its success to the symphonic and unique style in which they render their numbers.

REPUBLICANS MAY VOTE FOR GREENE

Latest Capitol Gossip is That They Think They Can Irritate More Democrats by Keeping Him on Job.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Dec. 4.—Despite all reports to the contrary, Republicans in the 1924 senate may spring a surprise and vote for the confirmation of Col. Frederick Stuart Greene as state superintendent of public works, according to a story circulated at the capitol today.

If the Republican senators vote to confirm Col. Greene it will be because they believe it to be "good politics," according to a Democratic leader.

Some of the leaders in the Republican party, so the story goes, have come to the conclusion, following the recent probe in the state canal bureau, that it would be better for the Republican party to keep Col. Greene on the job.

Republican leaders, according to report, are now convinced that certain Democratic leaders would like nothing better than to see the next senate turn the colonel down cold.

So far as politics is concerned, Col. Greene has served notice on both Democratic and Republican leaders that "they must keep their hands off" the public works department. In other words, Col. Greene is not appointing men in the public works department just because they are recommended by Democratic leaders.

According to report at the capitol, William Kelley of Syracuse, Democratic leader of Onondaga county, is one of the Democratic leaders who are not at all pleased with the way things have been going politically since Col. Greene has been in charge of the public works department. Mr. Kelley, it is said, is one of the Democratic leaders from up-state who protested to Governor Smith against the Greene appointment.

"I am convinced more would be accomplished politically by keeping Col. Greene on the job," said one Republican at the capitol today.

Col. Greene, it is said, has the absolute backing of Governor Smith in everything he is doing.

RONDOUT LODGE HONORS VETERANS

Members Who Have Passed Half Century Masonic Milestone Are Guests at Veterans' Night—
George H. Van Wageningen Receives Fifty Year Jewel.

Monday evening Rondout Lodge,
No. 313, F. & A. M., held its annual "Veterans' Night," an evening set apart each year to honor those members who have been in good standing for fifty years. This year the lodge has but one member, George H. Van Wageningen, who passes the half century Masonic milestone, making the total number of veteran members of the lodge now living an even dozen.

The fifty year members were escorted to the lodge rooms and introduced by Right Worshipful Samuel Stern, who then presented Brother Van Wageningen, whose name is now added to the lodge's honor roll, with a fifty year jewel in memory of Veterans' Night. Of the members who have passed the half century Masonic milestone there were present that evening John B. Alliger, Le Grand Becker, O-car L. Eastman, Frederick Straley and James Tongue.

The other members, who were not able to attend were George J. Dunn, William Ford, Wesley D. Hale,
John M. Mayer, Charles A. Pardee
and William B. Scott.

During the evening brief addresses were made by many of the members, and Richard H. Corbett, 81 years old, a member of Copiston Lodge of New York city, entertained the veterans and members with a number of original recitations and poems. Brother Corbett, who has been around the world, is now living near Rifton and bears his years well.

He walked from his home back of Rifton to this city and at the close of the lodge Monday evening he walked back home as he believes that an active life will aid him in retaining his vigor.

The refreshment committee served a buffet lunch which brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.
There were a number of visiting Masons present at the meeting.

Next Monday evening the Master Mason degree will be conferred on a class of candidates and the second

LYCEUM ARTISTS AT MASONIC CLUB WEDNESDAY

The Masonic Club will give the second of its lyceum course entertainments Wednesday evening, December 5, at its rooms, 635 Broadway. The California Male Quartet will furnish the entertainment. It is stated that the success of this quartet lies in the fact that each member is a soloist of unusual ability, their voices having been chosen originally because of their perfect blending in ensemble work. George Thomas, first tenor and manager, is a Welsh artist; Earl S. Renner, second tenor, has a voice of unusual promise; J. Ross McKenzie, baritone, comes from Scotland and is also a Scotch impersonator; John W.
Linc is a well known concert singer of England, and Miss Mae Chandler is a gifted accompanist.

ston and was formed last month. All

Your Face Is Not Your Fortune

ONCE upon a time perhaps the pretty woman believed that her face was her fortune. But the modern woman knows that her fortune is her intelligence. And with intelligence she knows that such important charms as her hands must be made the most of and as guardedly cared for as the beauty of her face.

Today intelligent women know that red, rough and coarse looking hands are nearly always caused by common household soap, which irritates the skin.

They always insist upon Kirkman's Soap which they know is as harmless to the hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap.

KIRKMAN'S Soap is free from lye to redden and coarsen the hands. It is made of materials noted for their absolute purity and is guaranteed to contain absolutely no adulterants such as starch talcum powder or water glass.

For all household and laundry purposes, Kirkman's Soap is the best and quickest cleanser that you can use. Its cleansing properties are so thorough that much less "elbow-grease" is required when you use Kirkman's.

For the sake of your hands, insist on Kirkman's Soap.

YOUR HANDS WILL BE GRATEFUL

No Longer Any Reason For Denying Your Family Delicious Griddle Cake Breakfasts

No Grease! No Smoke!

If You Use a

"Wear-Ever"

Sheet Aluminum Griddle

Everybody likes griddle cakes— piping hot, nut brown, mealy, delicious—the ideal breakfast dish for snappy Autumn and Winter mornings. Yet in a good many homes griddle cakes, as much as they are liked, are not served because of the smoke from ordinary griddles.

Such homes will welcome the "Wear-Ever" Griddle. This most advanced type of griddle —a new item in the "Wear-Ever" line—does not require grease and therefore is ideal for use in even the smallest home. No grease means no smoke!

"No! Leave it open. It isn't necessary to close the kitchen door now that we have a grease-less, smokeless 'Wear-Ever' Griddle."

Because any difficulties that have occurred in the past in the use of "Wear-Ever" Fry Pans were caused by improper heat regulation, two years ago we sold over a million small fry pans at a special price and with careful directions for regulating the heat.

Subsequent increase in sales of all "Wear-Ever" Fry Pans has proved again that a pan in use is our best advertisement.

For the same reason, we are now offering a small size Griddle at the special introductory price of $1.35. It is a new item on which the regular price when established will probably be $2.50.

They are easy to make—just follow this simple recipe

3 cups flour	1 teaspoon salt	2 cups milk or water (scant)
3 teaspoons baking powder	2 eggs	1 tablespoon sugar
Sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar together. Beat eggs and milk together, add melted butter to this. Gradually stir the liquid into the dry ingredients, making a smooth batter. Heat the griddle. (Some women place a bit of butter near the outer edge of the griddle. When the butter browns, griddle is hot enough to bake cakes.) Then turn down the flame about one-half. Pour the cakes on hot griddle. When the cakes are full of bubbles, turn and brown on other side.

Be sure to get your "Wear-Ever" Griddle today!

POULTRY

Wheat Given Important Place as Poultry Feed

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
With the price of wheat in several states lower than, or about equal to, the price of corn, poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture point out the desirability of giving wheat an important place in poultry rations. The influence of war-time conservation of wheat is still evident, according to specialists of the department, but there are no longer any economic reasons for conserving wheat or using it solely as a human food. On the other hand, it is so plentiful and cheap in many localities that it is a more economical live stock and poultry feed than corn.

Corn and wheat are the two best grains for poultry and are about equal in value for this purpose, although wheat can be fed alone better than corn, which is inclined to be fattening. Best results are obtained when wheat and corn are combined about equally in egg-laying rations. Following is a good scratch mixture: 1 pound cracked corn, 1 pound wheat, 1 pound oats.

While wheat is an excellent feed for dairy cows and meat animals, it needs to be ground for best results with such stock, whereas poultry relish it and utilize it as whole grain.

The department points out also that wheat at 80 cents per bushel, which was the approximate current price recently in seven Middle Western states, is $20.00 per ton, which is a lower price than prevails for various other feeds having no greater nutritive value. The department's recommendations for putting wheat back on a pre-war basis as a stock feed are reinforced by action already taken by some farmers. A co-operative association of Michigan farmers recently published a list of feeds for which wheat could be more economically substituted. This association contends that the local wheat market was below the cost of production and that local wheat would bring more when fed to live stock than when sold on the open market.

Wheat for Chickens Is Recommended to Farmers

Wheat fed to chickens is worth considerably more than wheat sold at the present market price, say poultrymen at the Ohio State university, who have modified their rations to allow for this fact.

They are substituting whole wheat for corn in the scratch feed, and intend to continue this substitution as long as the bushel price of wheat stays below the bushel price of corn.

But the largest saving, they say, comes from grinding wheat, and substituting whole wheat in the dry mash for the bran and middlings usually fed. The old formula for the standard Ohio dry mash was equal parts of bran, middlings, cornmeal, ground oats, and meat scrap or tankage.

The new formula, now being fed at the college poultry plant, and recommended to all farmers with 95 per cent wheat on their hands, is: 2 parts ground whole wheat, and 1 part each of cornmeal, ground oats and meat scrap or tankage.

The whole wheat, it is said, increases the feeding value of the mash. Each hundredweight of wheat so fed saves buying that much bran and middlings. With middlings at $40 a ton, wheat has a substitution value of around $1.20 a bushel when thus fed.

The farmer with a good-sized flock could more than pay for a feed grinder by the saving made under this plan, the college people believe.

Damp Quarters Cause of Roup and Other Diseases

Damp, dark quarters often are one of the main causes of lack of thrift, disease and loss among fowls on the average farm. Fifth and dampness cause 90 per cent of the colds, roup and most of the other diseases that ravage the farm flock. Coldness is not nearly so destructive as dampness, for dampness seems to work through the feathers of the fowls and produces a creepy, chilly sensation that is not at all pleasant. Fowls can stand plenty of fresh air and ventilation so long as it is a dry cold.

To prevent the conditions outlined above, if you have an earth floor in the henhouse, fill in the entire floor at least six inches above the level of the ground on the outside of house. If there are any cracks in the walls or roof through which the wind and rain can blow, close them up at once.

The saddest part of all the destruction caused by drafts and dampness is that such conditions can almost always be easily remedied.

Plan to Prevent Moist Mash From Packing Hard

An excellent way to prevent moist mash from packing into an indigestible mass in the crop of the hen is by adding short-cut alfalfa or clover hay to the mixture. This sort of food may compose as much as 20 to 25 per cent of the mash by bulk in most cases. The most essential thing in this case is that the hay be leafy and cut in quite short lengths. Before mixing with the mash, first soak the hay in a bucket of water for several hours.

Monte Attell Is Blind

Fate plays cruel tricks on celebrities in the sporting world the same as in other fields. It has just come to light that Monte Attell, a brother of the noted Abe, has gone totally blind and is now conducting a newsstand, the money for which his friends in San Francisco put up. In the ring years, Monte injured his eyes in a fight one night and gradually went blind. Perhaps his greatest blow was his 42-round setto against Frankie Conley at Vernon.

Welbourne Proves to Be

Longest Shot of Season

The longest shot of the year developed in the concluding race on the last day at Laurel park when an unknown three-year-old colt called Old Welbourne was first by inches, paying $204.80 to $2 in the mutual machines. The horse had started only twice previously, in both of which races he was badly outrun.

The wise gentry, of course, avoided the colt as they would the leprosy. But there happened to be a few jobbers in the crowd in search of souvenirs.

When Old Welbourne hoisted the winning number his novice friends exchanged their pastebored souvenirs for United States currency. The odds figure $132.40 to $1, a record for 1923 on Maryland tracks.

Wednesday evening at the local armory court the Morgenweek clan will oppose the Trenton team of the Metropolitan League. Trenton at present in the third position trailing Kingston. On Friday evening of this week the local representatives journey to Trenton, which will complete their week's work.

Trenton is a very strong outfit, having been defeated but once in a number of years on its own court. This defeat came this season at the hands of the Brooklyn leaders. The games with the Trenton team this week will have great bearing on the race for the first half honors. Kingston to be in the running will surely have to take Wednesday evening's contest for it is very dubious if they can win on the Trenton court. To drop two games this week would give the Brooklyn squad a safe lead, that would be hard to catch in the first half race. But if Kingston breaks even, the gap would not be widened to ominous proportions. If the local representatives win both contests, Brooklyn will hold the exalted position by a thin margin. Of course, it is highly probable that the Brooklyn team can also lose, which, of course, would merely alter matters.

The Kingston team it is expected will be intact for these contests, with Campbell and C. Husta in the forward positions, Dolan at center, and C. Powers and Artus at the guard positions. The Trenton team will come here headed by Morris Toms, with Sugarman, Glaser, Madue, Kearns, Bastro and Huddy.
